Matterhorn: Portrat eines Berges, Portrait of a Mountain Nenad Saljic

MATTERHORN: Portrait of a Mountain, a series of black-and-white photographs by the Croatian artist Nenad Saljic (b. 1961), functions as a metaphysical carte de visite: an allegorical combination of beauty, transience and monumentality with the documentary character underlying the work. Invisible forces of nature, at work over millions of years, have created the Matterhorn in a lengthy and random process of Apollonian formative power. Visible and animate forms of nature, captured by Saljic, record his subject over the course of time and breathe life into geologic matter. In his photographs, the artist gives the Matterhorn strongly expressed features, thereby creating a passionate and aesthetic snapshot of the interplay - always changing, never returning back to the same - of already formed matter, animate nature, and the human being as creator, as a force of representation. - Kevin Muster

MATTERHORN: Portrait of a Mountain is a seven-year artist photo book project, a photographic story about the Matterhorn (4478 m), one of the world's most magnificent and famous mountains. The book is homage to all those who dare to reach higher.

Bilingual: English & German, with 43 black & white photographs beautifully printed in duotone on matt paper, published by Orada & Galerie Rigassi Bern in conjunction with the exhibition: NENAD SALJIC.MATTERHORN: Portrait of a Myth / Der Mythos im Porträt GALERIE RIGASSI Bern, Switzerland: 25 June - 8 August 2015.
