By coaching over 100 teachers a month in their classrooms, Michael Grinder elicited the patterns that create excellent teaching, for regular and Special Education, at all grade levels. Tying in the principles of Neurolinguistic Programming (NLP), this book outlines techniques for classroom management, tips on individualized learning styles, and stress-reducing methods for coping with one of the most challenging professions. Full of charts, cartoons, exercises and real-life stories from the classroom to enliven the text.

Research published by the National Education Association shows that 82% of all classroom communication is nonverbal; this comprehensive resource book delineates the nonverbal patterns that are effective. Teachers, administrators, parents and homeschoolers will find valuable insights within this book which can easily be implemented. This book directly assists "at-risk" kids. See also Grinder's book on Classroom Management called ENVoY.
